Mike Steele, a Georgia Resident for 39 years, a graduate of the University of Georgia, and a member of the 1980 National Championship Georgia Bulldog football team, is an expert in security and security operations. He is the founder and CEO of One Focus International Training Group (OFITG), www.ofitg.com, headquartered in Madison, Georgia. OFITG is a global services company that provides holistic security solutions, full-spectrum training, and operational support to clients around the world. Clients include governments, militaries, corporations, and individuals primarily located in the Middle East and in Central and South America. Mr. Steele serves as the Senior Mentor for the U.S. Southern Command's largest annual exercise that includes over 30 Caribbean/South American countries.

Prior to founding OFITG, Mr. Steele served as the Senior Vice President, Special Operations and International Markets for The Columbia Group in Washington, DC. Mr. Steele designed and built an International Markets Division from scratch, developing significant and lasting relationships throughout Central and South America. Notably, Mr. Steele assisted the Colombian government in designing a comprehensive "Secret Service" academy to train the personal security details for the President and the Minister of Defense of Colombia.

As a consultant, trainer, and motivational speaker, Mr. Steele conducts over 80 public speaking engagements every year. In 2009, he was the keynote speaker for the Rolling Thunder National Event, speaking from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington to over 800,000 attendees. In 2011, he served as the primary surrogate speaker for Herman Cain in the 2012 Presidential Campaign. Subsequently, Mr. Steele was recruited and hired to serve as a surrogate speaker for Newt Gingrich in the 2012 Presidential Campaign. In 2017, Mr. Steele was the keynote speaker to over four hundred orthopedic surgeons at the annual Society of Military Orthopedic Surgeons (SOMOS) at Lake Tahoe, California. Mr. Steele continues to serve as the guest speaker for numerous corporate events, and graduation ceremonies for the U.S. military and foreign countries.

Prior to founding OFITG, Mr. Steele spent 29 years in the United States Army and Georgia National Guard where he served in every light infantry division and the 75th Ranger Regiment. He served extensively in combat zones including Mogadishu, Somalia, Afghanistan, Iraq, and Bosnia, serving in both command and senior leadership positions in those locations. In 2006, he and his 4000-person Brigade Combat Team were selected as the winner of the USCENTCOM Outstanding Action Award, an annual award to the single most effective unit in Afghanistan and Iraq in fighting terrorism. In 1983, Mr. Steele graduated from the U.S. Secret Service Basic Course. In 1995, he received a Master of Administration from Central Michigan University, and in 2004 he received a Master of Strategic Studies (International Relations) from the U.S. Army War College.

In 2009, Mr. Steele founded the charitable organization Faces of Freedom, which assists returning wounded veterans with reintegration into society in Georgia. He also serves as an adjunct member of the medical staff at Shepherd Medical Center in Atlanta.
